

Let me, on behalf of the Russian Chamber of Commerce and Industry, welcome the participants, visitors and organizers of the Russian Health Care Week 2017.

The development of the current medical industry and creation of an efficient health care system are the important responsibilities of public authorities. The industry's priorities are stated in the Russian state program of health care development, which defines approaches to enhancement of the health care system, building of a preventive environment, and improvement of quality of medical services and qualification of medical personnel.

Over many years, the Russian Health Care Week has been a perfect platform to carry out a dialogue between government representatives and health care professionals and to show the latest medical equipment, technologies and standards.

I am positive that the Week will help to come up with effective solutions, to exchange expertise and the latest research, and to promote innovative developments in practical medicine.

Let me wish you every success and good health!

Sergey Katyrin
President
Russian Chamber of Commerce and Industry
